BUSINESS BUILDING UNDER CONSTRUCTION

The Business Administration building is rapidly taking shape as the contractors move along with the completion of the concrete work for the framework of the building. The Home Economics building has reached about the same stage of construction as the Business Administration building, and while the two buildings are slightly different in style and arrangement, they are about the same size. Other renovation and repair projects on the campus are getting underway with Old Social (Religious Building or Old Model School) being practically demolished. The lumber will be used in the wood work of the new Religious building. Foundations are poured and progress is being made on the new dairy on the lower end of Chaplin's Lake. Remodeling and new work on the dining hall is going forward as fast as possible under the handicap of keeping at least half of the building open for use while working on the other part of the building.

Stinson Honored by Citizens at Melville

More than 50 people from many Louisiana communities attended a testimonial dinner at the Melville High School gymnasium on December 12 to honor Milton Hamilton Stinson, A.B. '27, for his thirty years of continuous service as principal of the Melville High School.

Former students of Mr. Stinson came from Opelousas, Melville, New Iberia, Port Barre, and all surrounding communities for the occasion. The event was planned by the M. H. S. Alumni Association.

A bronze plaque was presented by John Able, representing the citizens and alumni of the school, to Mr. Stinson in recognition of the 30 years of service to the school, community, religious and civic organizations.

As a material tribute to Mr. Stinson, a drinking fountain was installed on the campus. It was accepted by Superintendent S. A. Moncla for the Parish School Board, who commended the splendid work done by Mr. Stinson in Melville.

Teacher of Admiral Nimitz Passes On

Miss Alma Hammett Fulton, graduate of the class of 1890, passed away Friday, December 31, 1948, in a Shreveport hospital at the age of 82 years.

Daughter of Rev. Jesse Fulton and Lucy Ann Hammett, pioneer families of Natchitoches Parish, Miss Fulton entered the "Normal" with the first class and would have graduated in the class of 1886, but because of crop failure she dropped out of school and re-entered later to finish with the class of 1890.

Miss Fulton taught over 50 years in Louisiana and Texas. One of her most cherished memories was that she taught Admiral Nimitz in Kerrville, Texas, and helped coach him for his examinations when he entered the U. S. Naval Academy.

LIBRARY

NORTHWESTERN STATE COLLEGE

EAST CAMPUS IN 1902

East dormitory on the left, and the matron's building, formerly the Bullard mansion (center). The wings added to each side of the old Bullard mansion constituted the buildings of the convent, which later became the Louisiana State Normal School. This building is, according to legend, the first home of the "Ghost," who moved to Caldwell Hall recently.

N. S. C. Ghost Moves Again

It is midnight of January 15, 1949. Suddenly the silence of the night is broken by low moans and sobs coming from the Religious Building (Old Model School). The moans grow louder and louder, the sobs become shrieks, planks begin falling, chains start to rattle, and then, to make matters worse and add to the confusion, bells start ringing in the dormitories. The whistle and siren at the power plant add their blasts and screeches to the eerie sounds.

Students come pouring out of the dormitories, curious, fearful, wild-eyed, expecting—they know not what. An apparition moves out of the partly dismantled Religious Building. It is a ghost! A beautiful young ghost, lovely even in ghostdom. She is accompanied by two other ghosts. Yes, not one, but three (every good, well established ghost has at least two assistant ghosts).

They move quickly toward Caldwell Hall as the screaming, yelling students start out in pursuit. But self-respecting ghosts will never permit mere mortal beings to catch them, and so they rushed into Caldwell Hall ahead of the pursuing mob. And true to ghost tradition, the specters immediately disappeared.

Search as they would, the milling crowd could find no further trace of the ghosts—only a few drops of blood (ghost blood) on the first step of the stairs leading to the second floor. So now, the ghost of early days has found a new home, and in Caldwell Hall she will take her refuge until, in the far distant future, mortal man will again destroy her abiding place.

Tradition has handed down the story that the "Ghost of Normal," when forced to move from a building that is being demolished, always selects for her future home the oldest building remaining on the campus. With the demolition of old Model School, the ghost had to move into Caldwell Hall. Be that as it may, the day following the move out of old Model School, the following letter, slightly amended, was found:

11:45 Post Mortem
January 15, 1949
Old Social, N. S. C.

Dear Mortal Friends:

For me there is no rest—no lasting peace. Once more my weary spirit must seek refuge within alien halls, once more must I tear myself away from the familiar scenes of my resting place of the past decades. Long were the nights I have spent within these walls; many the silent hours of sorrow. And one cannot depart from the place of one's anguish without regret.

Once I, too, knew the happiness of youth and love. That was before the dreadful years of the Civil War. We were so happy together then, but he, choosing to defend the land he loved, went forth with the Army of the Confederacy. And when he did not return, I felt that I could no longer endure a life in the world among my friends and associates who, at least to all outward appearances, were living lives filled with love and happiness—and I toyed with the little silver dagger.—The little silver dagger gleamed so entrancingly that I thought "not in life perhaps, but . . ."

Always I have been forced to move—on and on. Last night I shivered and moaned as I resigned myself to the knowledge that once more I must go forth into the coldness of the night to seek refuge—in Caldwell Hall.

And now, tonight, I tear myself away . . .

DeSoto Alumni Elect Webb to Head Local Group

DeSoto Parish alumni of Northwestern State College met on December 13 at the Mansfield High School and organized the DeSoto Parish Unit.

President Joseph E. Gibson addressed the group. He explained the work the alumni could do and asked their cooperation in holding up the high traditions and standards of the College and in furthering its future growth and development.

J. W. Webb, alumni president, who was in Chicago on business, wired his felicitations to the group.

Mr. John T. Moseley of Keatchie, beloved retired DeSoto principal, delighted the crowd with his humorous anecdotes and reminiscences of the College as he knew it under President B. C. Caldwell during the period of 1896 to 1899.

The following officers were elected:

President, J. J. Webb; vice president, Ruby Dry; secretary-treasurer, Bessie Matthews Smith; members of the Board of Directors, May Huson and Palma Coody Lafitte; correspondent, Susie Chaffin.

The meeting closed with a social hour. Delicious refreshments were served by a committee composed of Ruth Pullig Martin, Fayrene Hanson Webb, Claudine Robertson Love, Bessie Matthews Smith, Ruby Dry, and Mae Henry.

Forty-eight charter members were signed up at this initial meeting of the DeSoto Parish Alumni.

Red Cross School Is Ranked Second in Nation

Attendance at the American National Red Cross aquatic school conducted on the campus last summer ranked second among the six regular schools conducted throughout the nation in 1948, according to Oliver Allen, director of safety services for the Southeastern area. In a letter received by Mr. Guy W. Nesom, head of Department of Health and Physical Education, it was stated that only Camp Carolina, Brevard, North Carolina, enrolled a greater number than the school held here.

One hundred and twenty students and staff members made up the total attendance at the school on the campus last summer.

Instructors trained at the Red Cross Aquatic School here totaled 87 in first aid and 18 in water safety.

Facilities at Northwestern, including the natatorium and Chaplin's Lake, make it an ideal site for the annual Red Cross program. Mr. Nesom and some of the members of his staff have assisted in conducting the program each year since their inauguration.

during the past thirty years. He is recognized throughout the state as an able and capable school man and is most deserving of the promotion that has been given him. He will succeed Superintendent H. M. Wells, who is retiring from the office this year.

Serving as a member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association for many years, Mr. Aiken has always been keenly interested in promoting the work of the association.

Our best wishes for a most successful administration in his new office go to Mr. Aiken.

* * *

We are indebted to Mr. J. W. Bateman, Department of Education, for his letters of encouragement and lively interest in the Alumni Association. Mr. Bateman is a graduate of the class of 1904 and a former president of the Alumni Association (1911-12). He was a member of the faculty of the "Normal" for several years in the Agriculture and Biology departments.

Mr. Bateman has his office at 120 Stubbs Hall on the LSU campus. Even though he is a very busy man, he writes that he takes time out to read each issue of the Alumni Columns.

* * *

A letter from Spencer Phillips, A.B. '27, superintendent of Louisiana State School for the Deaf, states that he thinks the picture printed in the last issue of Alumni Columns depicting the secretary pouring coffee is a "smear campaign" and suggested that somebody should be arrested. Anyway, the social event was lots of fun and quite an experiment.

* * *

A recent letter from Ray Perrin, ex '46, of 631 Common street, New Orleans, stated that he was not married as had been reported, but was still a member of the bachelor colony. This is to correct a statement made in Alumni Columns, September, 1948, issue referring to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Perrin at 3321 Prytania, New Orleans. To avoid further complications, the Ray Perrin mentioned in this article is originally from Ponchartroula. (Incidentally, there is another Ray Perrin, hence the error. We got them mixed up).
